

Delaware Employer Quarterly Reporting Checklist

Prepare. File. Verify.

This checklist is designed to help Delaware employers prepare for quarterly PFML wage reporting before logging into LaborFirst. Completing these items in advance can help reduce filing delays, minimize corrections, and make quarterly reporting more predictable.

Preparing your quarterly Delaware Paid Family & Medical Leave (PFML) wage report is easier when everything is gathered before you log into LaborFirst. This checklist is intended to help employers prepare for a successful filing and avoid common delays.

Step 1 – Gather Your Reference Materials

- Delaware PFML Reporting Specifications
- Current CSV/XML Templates
- Tips & Tricks
- Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)
- Other Delaware PFML guidance

Friendly Tip: Gather these resources before you begin. They are often the quickest way to answer questions during the filing process.

Step 2 – Gather Employer Information

- Delaware PFML Employer Account Number
- Reporting Year
- Reporting Quarter
- Employer Contribution %

Friendly Tip: Confirm your Employer Contribution % before preparing your file so your payroll records and reporting are aligned.

Step 3 – Review Employee Data

- Social Security Number
- First Name
- Middle Initial (if applicable)

- Last Name
- DE FICA Wages
- Combined Out-of-State Wages
- Total Hours Worked
- Weeks Worked

Step 4 – Confirm LaborFirst Access

- Administrator access to the employer's LaborFirst account
- Ability to navigate to the correct "Account Division Period"

Step 5 – Generate Your Wage File

- Generate a Delaware PFML specification-compliant CSV or XML file
- Verify the file was generated for the correct reporting quarter

Step 6 – Verify Prior Quarter Filings

- Confirm all prior required quarterly reports have been successfully filed

Friendly Tip: Delaware currently expects quarterly wage reports to be filed in sequence. Resolve any missing prior quarters before filing the current one.

Step 7 – Upload Your File

Select your file and submit it through LaborFirst.

If you receive an Error Report

Review the reported errors, correct the file, generate a new file if necessary, and resubmit until the file is accepted.

If you receive an Invalid Schema or Invalid File Format message

These messages usually indicate that the system could not read the file at all. Unlike employee data validation errors, they generally do not identify a specific employee or field. These issues often require reviewing the file format, schema, or the payroll system that generated the file.

If the file is accepted

LaborFirst will display the Wage Table. This indicates the file has been successfully read and the wage data has been loaded into the system. Review the Wage Table before continuing.

Step 8 – Finalize the Filing

- Review the certification statement
- Check the certification box
- Enter your electronic signature

- Enter the submission date
- Click Finish to complete the filing
- Save or print the confirmation page

Step 9 – Verify Your Submission

Previously submitted wages can be reviewed by navigating to Home → Account Division → Wages, where prior quarterly submissions may be viewed.

Final Thoughts

Approaching quarterly reporting as a simple checklist can help reduce filing errors, minimize corrections, and make each reporting cycle more predictable.
